Worship at the Meetinghouse

Sunday January 30, 10 am

Ch-ch-Changes! (with apologies to David Bowie)

Ms. Laura Graham, Ministerial Settlement Representative for the Mass Bay District

Today's worship service will be followed by an open forum and conclude by 11:15 am

With our settled minister retiring we are beginning a transition which will include welcoming an Interim Minister next year while we search for a new settled minister. Ms. Laura Graham will join us this morning to talk about the opportunities and possibilities (along with the anxieties) that come with this kind of major transition in the life of a congregation.

To launch the process officially, she will describe the UUA process for ministerial transition, and, answer questions in the open forum that immediately follows the worship service.

Ms. Graham is the Ministerial Settlement Representative for the Mass Bay District of the UUA. She is a Family Mediator, a member of the First Parish in Concord, and currently serves on the governing board of the Mass Bay District. Following social hour, Ms. Graham will meet with the Trustees and Nominating Committee to outline and launch the succession planning process.

Today we share the plate with the Healing Garden. See pg. 7 for details.

Creativity and Compassion

Rev. Katie Lee Crane with special guest singer, songwriter Nancy Beaudette

Many of us met Nancy Beaudette last summer when she came to sing and preach about Karen Armstrong's Charter for Compassion, a document "that transcends religious, ideological, and national difference," says Armstrong." Now, we are delighted to have Nancy back – this time to sing with the choir and share the pulpit with Katie Lee. Both women are profoundly influenced by the Charter for Compassion and will explore the role of creativity in living one's faith. Someone said "Nancy doesn't just write songs; she paints them." Listen to the deeply personal messages in her songs you may find yourself noticing that a beautiful honesty of her voice that points directly to your own heart."

Making Meanings BY REV. KATIE LEE CRANE

I write this before the State of the Union address. Senator Brown will be “crossing the aisle” to sit with Senator Carpenter of Delaware. Representative Niki Tsongas says she just plans to wander over to the Republican side of the aisle and look for a seat. Sitting together is nice, but it’s not enough. I hope they actually talk to one another. They don’t have to start with the most divisive issues – “how are the kids” – might be a good ice breaker.

Civility is a good, but not enough, either. Engagement is essential. Recently, I heard an interview with a Congressional spouse. This particular spouse, wife of a longtime congressman, lamented the exhortation of Newt Gingrich: “tell your wives to stay home – they’re needed in the district.” Not the District of Columbia, mind you, but back at the Kiwanis dinners and neighborhood block parties. This particular wife claims that his advice led, in part, to where we are today.

“When the spouses worked together on projects, we got to know each other as people,” she said. “We knew whose marriage was stressed and whose kids were struggling. Our spouses might argue all week, might vote opposite ways much of the time, but then we’d all have dinner together on Saturday, or meet at the kids’ soccer games or school plays.” She said, knowing each other in this way contributed to a moderating tone; it helped to remind our elected leaders of just how human each member of Congress really is.

Last week, there was lots of fuss over Hu Jintao’s official visit from China. The protocol. The dinner. The kowtowing (some said). I heard rants: “How could the 2009 Nobel Peace Prize winner be looking for ways to “cooperate” with the man who imprisons the 2010 Peace Prize winner? I’ll admit it’s a delicate dance. Our president having to acknowledge and we hope, press the human rights issue, and still engage in other issues where they might find common ground. Sometimes I wish these visiting dignitaries would put on their grubby clothes and go re-paint a community center or serve dinner in a soup kitchen. Experiences like that make a difference.

After one provocative exchange on a radio talk show, I literally said out loud one of my favorite lines from a poem by 13th century Sufi poet Rumi

Out beyond ideas of wrongdoing and rightdoing, / there is a field. I’ll meet you there.

For many years, I have truly believed that we can meet many kinds of people in that field – and, if we’re willing to stay there awhile – we can be transformed there. We can start with “how are the kids” if we need to. We can find a project to do together regardless of how many ways we disagree. When we actually come to know each other as people, a world of possibilities opens up.

Many say I’m naïve. Some say I am not living my faith if I fail to take a stand against the abuses we see all around us. But, I am living my faith. I will not ignore the abuses. But neither will I ignore the good/god in another. I want to find common ground. I want us not only to sit together but build bridges together, so we can (at least on some things) stand together.

Too often, when we “take a stand” we get stuck in the sand. Let’s dare to meet in the field beyond wrongdoing and rightdoing and dare to see what’s possible.

Blessing, Katie Lee

A Message from the Committee on Ministry:

We have received feedback on the issues congregants have had in filling out the ministerial survey, and fortunately, there have been fewer than we thought. We remain confident that this survey software is the best tool available to help us collect the information we need.

1. PLEASE FILL OUT THE SURVEY BY THE FEB. 1st DEADLINE so that your responses will be taken into account, and we value feedback from all adults, youth and children who have participated in some aspect of congregational life. It is not necessary to be a member. The survey is on-line at <http://www.zoomerang.com/Survey/WEB22BNY6NCZ3K/> or available in paper form from the office.
2. Please be sure to continue on to page two of the survey (following question #30) by clicking Submit. You should receive a thank-you message once finished to confirm that your survey has been tallied.
3. Contact a member of the Committee on Ministry if you have a problem, and/or contact Donna Scalcione if you prefer a paper version.
4. Stay tuned for the results, as well as the series of conversations in the spring which will allow us to have a more interactive form of assessment.

Regards,

Transgender Equality Discussion

The Welcoming Congregation Committee will RESCHEDULE speakers from MassEquality and the Interfaith Coalition for Transgender Equality on the topic of Passing the Transgender Civil Rights Bill in Massachusetts: What It Means and What Must Be Done to Get It.

In the meantime, ASAP, please phone your state senator and representative and tell them you support adding gender identity and expression to the Commonwealth's Civil Rights Code. And, most important - ask them to co-sponsor the bill.

Our UU Principles agree: No one deserves to be fired, refused work, denied housing, education or credit, or suffer harassment or violence just because of who they are -- but transgender and gender non-conforming people in Massachusetts routinely face all of these for transitioning from one sex to another, or simply for defying expectations of what a 'normal' man or woman looks like. Please contact your state legislators today. Call Donna Scalcione for more details or to find the right phone numbers to call.

Discussion about Classism with Rev. Mark Harris

On Friday, March 4 at 7pm, we will have special guest Rev. Mark Harris join us to lead a discussion about classism. Rev. Harris is the author of the new book, Elite: Uncovering Classism in Unitarian Universalist History. This provocative and critical look at class in Unitarian Universalist history reveals that today's largely middle-class and educated congregants are descended from an elite cultural establishment. The wealth, standing and religious conviction of these forebears converged in actions and ideas that would be appalling by modern standards. Mark Harris eloquently argues that this history needs to be known in order for the denomination to envision a broader, more inclusive future. Elite is a crucial new resource for the historical understanding of Unitarian Universalism and a call for greater economic diversity. (If you wish to order a copy of the book for $10, contact us by 2/11 at DRE@fpsudbury.org)

2011 Pledge Drive

The 2011 Pledge Drive is beginning as First Parish of Sudbury is in a time of introspection and transition. The Committee on Ministry's assessment process already is confirming the extraordinary importance of community and place as expressed by members and friends. As the congregation begins preparing for the transition to a new permanent minister, this demonstration of our solidarity will be attractive to ministerial candidates.

In addition to being a strong community, First Parish also demonstrates how we are living our Stewardship – physical, emotional and material. With minor exceptions, material Stewardship is money. Our yearly pledge income comprises a very significant portion (over 70%) of the material Stewardship required to sustain our community and place. This also will be a factor in attracting strong candidates for permanent minister.

The success of last year's Pledge Drive cannot be a one-year phenomenon! The Finance Committee is continuing its three-year planning process to achieve zero-deficit budgeting with the current programs and staffing. The 2011 Pledge Drive will maintain the momentum achieved last year to financially sustain this beloved community and place.

Three dates to place on your calendar:

- February 27 - Finance Committee Q&A after the morning service.
- March 5 - Pasta Dinner: A wonderful community event to kick off the Pledge Drive. (Just good food and fun – no Pledge Drive speeches.)
- March 6 - Pledge Sunday: A worship service and opportunity to offer our financial commitment to First Parish of Sudbury for the coming year.

- Sheila D – 2011 Pledge Drive coordinator
- Michael T – Trustee & Finance Committee liaison

Sign Up Now for In-Home Dinners 2011

More than 125 of your friends are having dinner together on January 29, 30 and February 4. If you'd like to come, please contact Sue C or the office.

In-Home Dinners have been a First Parish activity for many years – for good reason – they are fun! They are a wonderful opportunity for long-term and newer members and friends to become better acquainted...children too. It's not too late to sign up if you act now.

Book Group to launch on February 2 Read Kushner's Overcoming Life's Disappointments

There's still time to sign up! The about-to-be launched First Parish Book Group will meet at 7:30 pm on Wednesday, Feb. 2 in the Commons to discuss Harold Kushner's 2006 book, Overcoming Life's Disappointments. Kushner has written a compelling book about how people deal with the realization that their lives will not turn out as they may have hoped. And he uses Moses as a prime example. Here was a leader with a passion for social justice, a commitment to the struggle for national liberation, and an earnest desire to reconcile law with compassion. Yet he also was a conflicted human who knew frustration, longing, and regret, especially about the price his family paid for his successes.

Katie Lee and Roberta are seeking inspiration from your stories about the times you felt your Unitarian Universalist values come alive at home or out in the larger community. If we would like to share it during a service, we would ask your permission to do so and invite you to decide who shares it. Please send your stories to us at DRE@fpsudbury.org.

Katie Lee Away on Retreat Feb. 7-13

Katie Lee will be joining hundreds of UU ministers at the “Institute for Excellence in Ministry” a retreat in Pacific Grove, California. It will be a week of worship multiple times a day, a week-long seminar, and some much-needed free time for spiritual refreshment and renewal. The Institute is offering eight different seminars, each runs through the week. Katie Lee will be taking the one called “Building a Vocal Community” with Ysaye Barnwell of Sweet Honey in the Rock. Dr. Barnwell describes it this way: participants will learn in the oral tradition – singing rhythms, chants, and traditional songs from Africa and the Diaspora, plus a variety of spirituals, ring shouts, hymns, gospels, and songs from the Civil Rights Movement. Dr. Barnwell promises to provide some of the historical, social and political context for the songs and also introduce the group to the African American world view, the values embedded in the music, and the role of cultural and spiritual traditions and rituals. Through this kind of communal singing, people discover ways in which leadership emerges and is shared by and among community members.

During Katie Lee’s absence, the Pastoral Associates will be on call as will local UU ministers in case of a pastoral emergency.

Matt is mobilizing volunteers and other activists in the Commonwealth, with an emphasis on Western, MA, to help achieve LGBT equality throughout the great Commonwealth of Massachusetts. What Messages about the Birds and the Bees Are We Teaching?

On Friday, January 28 at 7pm, we will enjoy our second in our Birds & Bees All Grown Up series. We will view two sexuality education videos targeted for teens, one that is shown in conservative Christian churches and one that is shown in the Unitarian Universalist Our Whole Lives program. We will not criticize either video, but will use them to inspire discussion about what we believe about human sexuality and what messages do we want to be teaching our own children and grandchildren. (This is not just for parents of our teens, everyone interested is welcome.)

Paper clips: It began as a lesson about prejudice ... what happened next was a miracle!

On Friday, February 4 at 7pm, we will view and discuss a documentary called Paper Clips. This is a repeat of a November Soulful Sundown that was so popular that everyone wanted to do it again so they could bring some friends. "When Tennessee's Whitwell Middle School began studying the Holocaust as a way to learn about intolerance and diversity, they started collecting paper clips to help them visualize the vast numbers of victims murdered by Hitler's Nazi regime. As word spread online and in the media, paper clips poured in by the millions from all around the world." First Parish member, Julia D E was the editor of the film and will share some of the behind-the-scenes inspiring moments.

The Magic Lantern: Doubt

On Friday, February 11 at 7pm, we will view and discuss Doubt as part of The Magic Lantern film series with Dr. Jonas B & Rev. Katie Lee Crane. In this Oscar-nominated adaptation of John Patrick Shanley's Tony-winning play, Sister Aloysius (Meryl Streep) begins to have doubts about doting priest Father Flynn (Philip Seymour Hoffman), who seems to have become overly involved in the life of a young African American pupil. But Flynn isn't the only one she doubts. Is she overreacting to the situation, or is there truth behind her convictions.

Soulful Sundowns will return March 4th with special guest Rev. Mark Harris leading a talk about classism, more Magic Lanterns, and a spring equinox celebration.
